

East New Britain clean-up time

LAST week was declared "East New Britain Week" during which time public servants were out of their offices carrying out a clean-up campaign. They pruned trees, mowed lawns and planted trees while others cut grass along road sides. This was to have coincided with the celebration of the provincial government's 13th anniversary. Pictured are members of the primary industry division cutting grass near their Kuragakaul DPI station on the North Coast Road on Wednesday. Among them is a Japanese volunteer.
